

Q1. What are Reporting Tools?

A. Reporting tools are software applications that allow businesses to generate, format, and analyze reports based on data from multiple sources. Examples include SSRS, Power BI, Tableau, and Crystal Reports.

Q2. Difference between Operational and Analytical Reports?

A. Operational reports focus on day-to-day business activities (e.g., invoices, sales receipts). Analytical reports are used for decision-making and trend analysis (e.g., dashboards, KPIs).

Q3. What is SSRS?

A. SQL Server Reporting Services (SSRS) is a server-based reporting tool by Microsoft that enables creating, managing, and delivering paginated and interactive reports.

Q4. Explain the difference between SSRS and Power BI.

A. SSRS is primarily for paginated, pixel-perfect reports, often static and print-friendly. Power BI is interactive, visual, cloud-enabled, and supports advanced analytics.

Q5. What are parameters in a report?

A. Parameters allow users to filter and customize reports dynamically at runtime. For example, selecting a date range or a specific region.
